Meeting Highlights

There is a need for greater collaboration between providers, and between providers and the different government departments who work in teacher development. Stakeholders who have expertise in certain areas should join together to work on issues in these areas. If these groups take on different parts of the system, the problems could be solved.

With this in mind, the CoP encouraged NPOs and NGOs involved in teacher development to share what they are currently doing to add value. The goal was to generate collaboration and partnership to add even more value to the teacher development arena.
